IV writing

Question E

In this review I will be writing about humanity's great invention that comes all way back from medieval times — a simple toothbrush! The tool, simple yet useful, can help you clean your teeth, pairing up with a toothpaste. It consists of a small handle to hold and a tiny brush segment at its end. To use it, you firstly apply toothpaste on top of the brush end of it, then put it in your mouth and start rubbing and pressing it over your teeth. You may ponder, "Why ever would I want to do that?" and that's because it will clean off any food leftovers or dirt that get stuck between them. Continuing, you should brush your teeth from every side possible, at a reasonable time. The process takes about one to two minutes. Then, take the toothbrush out and clean it with tap water, or more hygienic with drinkable water, say, pouring out of a bottle. Now you would want to spit out the toothpaste into the sink and then get water in your mouth, spitting it out too to get rid of any paste left. Good job, you have just brushed your teeth successfully. Preferably, you need to do that every morning when you wake up, and every night when you go to sleep. Having white teeth is going to make you more presentable to public, more attractive and making your smell from your mouth smell good. Some people don't give their time at the day to do that basic hygiene, resulting in their teeth aching or even breaking. For a fix you have to visit a dentist, and then pay him for a fix, that sometimes might cost a big lot. So to avoid that, use your toothbrush daily.
